

Rural Development Loans

There are also government loans specifically for family farms and to help finance housing in rural areas through the Farm Service Agency, an agency of the USDA. Through the Rural Housing and Community Development Service, the FSA will make direct loans of up to 100%, provide grants, and guarantee loans, primarily to low-income individuals. To keep mortgage costs low, the loans might be set up for 33 years, or even 38 for those with very low incomes.
