Leasehold estate

Relationship allowing a tenant to live on a property.

Lease

Contract allowing a tenant to occupy (not own) property.

Lessor

Landlord; the party who owns the property and gives the lease.

Lessee

Tenant; the party who receives the right to occupy the property.

Tenancy at sufferance

Tenant stays after the lease terminates, without the landlord's consent.

Estate at will

Lease without an end date that can be terminated at any time by either party.

Periodic estate

Lease that automatically renews for successive periods until properly terminated.

Capacity to contract

Both landlord and tenant must be legally competent to enter into the lease.

Demising clause

Language in which the landlord "demises and leases" the premises to the tenant.

Description of the premises

Clearly identifies the leased property (address, unit, or legal description).

Term of lease

A clear statement of when the lease begins and ends.

Rent specification

Specifies the rent amount and how, when, and where it is to be paid.

Use provisions

States how the premises may be used and any restrictions on use.

Writing requirement

Leases for more than one year must be in writing to be enforceable.

Signatures

The lease must be signed by both landlord and tenant.

Gross lease

All or most property expenses are covered by the rent paid by the tenant.

Net lease

Tenant pays base rent plus some property expenses separately (e.g., taxes, insurance).

Graduated lease

Rent increases at set times according to a pre-agreed schedule.

Escalated lease

Contains an escalation clause allowing rent increases to cover rising costs.

Reappraisal lease

Rent is periodically adjusted based on reappraisal of the property's value.

Index lease

Rent is tied to an index (like CPI) and changes as the index changes.

Fixed lease

Rent stays the same for the entire term of the lease.

Percentage lease

Tenant pays base rent plus a percentage of business income (often used for retail).

Ground lease

Tenant leases the land (often long-term) and may build on it; landlord keeps land ownership.

Oil and gas lease

Gives the right to explore for and produce oil or gas from the property.

MI Landlord-Tenant Relationship Act

Michigan law covering landlord and tenant obligations, security deposits, and lease termination.

Expiration

Lease ends automatically when the agreed term runs out.

Mutual agreement

Landlord and tenant agree to end the lease before the scheduled end date.

Abandonment

Tenant leaves and stops meeting lease obligations before the term ends.

Eviction

Legal process by which a landlord removes a tenant who has no right to stay.

Actual eviction

Court-ordered removal of a tenant from the premises.

Constructive eviction

Tenant leaves because landlord's actions or inaction make the unit uninhabitable or unusable.
