

Tie-In Arrangements

Another form of antitrust violation is a tie-in arrangement in which the providing of one service is made dependent on the customer or client obtaining another. For instance, an agent cannot tell a seller, "I can only offer this commission rate if you use the title company/inspector/mortgage broker I recommend." A tie-in arrangement may also be negative: "I can only work with you if you agree not to use XYZ Title Company." Both types of tie-in arrangements are violations of antitrust law.